BLAST WRECKS POWDER PLANT NEAR AMHERST

Loss To Hoynesite Co., Estimated at $100,000 in Night Fire.

HAVE NARROW ESCAPE

Two Men in Truck Race With Death From Big Explosion.

Amherst, O., Aug. 22.—Milton Freshwater and John P. White, president and vice president of the Hoynesite Powder Company, the latter former president of the United Mine Workers of America and other officials of the company from Cleveland today are making a survey of the explosion which at 6:30 o'clock last evening completely wrecked the company's plant located two miles east of here with a loss estimated at $100,000.

Seven buildings were leveled by the blast and eight others and a garage were practically demolished. Only the watchman's shed and a couple of small buildings remain standing.

The entire plant will have to be rebuilt if the company decides to continue operations. Twenty buildings in all were figured in the blast, which rocked Elyria, Lorain and Amherst. The detonation resembled an earthquake and attracted thousands of spectators from a radius of fifteen miles. The highway leading to the scene for a mile in each direction was congested with hundreds of automobiles and traffic was blocked when autos left their machines and rushed to the scene of the disaster.

Lawrence Harmon of Amherst, and Edward Lescher of Brownhelm today have practically recovered from their unnerving experience. The two are employed by the Zilch Transfer Company of Amherst, and had just started to unload the last truck load of a car of potash when Harmon said: "smells like sulphur burning."

Looking about the men discovered the floor of the large warehouse and mixing room ablaze with the fire creeping close to a large heap of blasting powder in the center of the room.

"For God's sake," shouted both men simultaneously and both had the same thought of jumping aboard the truck. But the truck was reluctant about starting. The fire was creeping closer and closer to the huge pile of powder. The blast which would snuff out their lives was momentarily imminent.

Suddenly the truck engine spouted a back fire and jumped forward with a leap. At full speed the truck traveled over the rough ground and had started to turn a curve among the hills when the powder let go. The truck was turned over by the force of the blast but both Harmon and Lescher had escaped serious injuries. A few scratches and bruises were all that the men sustained in their thrilling experience.

AGREEMENTS NEAR BETWEEN NATIONS OF CENTRAL EUROPE

Berlin, Aug. 22.—Economic agreements between Austria, Czechoslovakia, Germany and Italy are expected to result from the visits of Chancellor Zepel, of Austria, to these countries. It was learned here today following the arrival of the Austrian statesman in Berlin. There were reports that Dr. Zepel would discuss the possible merger of Austria with Germany despite the opposition to such a move on the part of the allies. The treaty of St. Germain with its makeshift provisions has brought Austria to the edge of its abyss. Declared Chancellor Zepel, "Austria now demands a positive political solution which will furnish the basis of economic recovery."

"France forbids a junction of Austria and Germany. England has refused to allow any other big power to gain dominion of the Danube. Italy opposes a federation of states on the Danube. The Czechs and Jugoslavs oppose Italian military expansion northward. Thus, Austria is a spitball within a vicious circle of irreconcilable, negative policies of the other powers."

"In Berlin, Prague and Rome, however, it is clearly realized what a complete Austrian debacle would mean. I am visiting these capitals with a view to fortifying Austria's economic relations with her immediate neighbors."

ONE STEP NEARER

Washington, Aug. 22.—President Harding's plan for a federal coal commission to conduct a sweeping investigation of the mining industry was a step nearer consummation this afternoon when the interstate and foreign commerce commission recommended immediate passage of the bill.

Administration leaders were hopeful the bill would be passed by the house later in the day.

DAVIS REPLIES TO HOOVER ON CHARGE AGAINST OPERATORS

Governor Asks Names of Alleged Profiteers in This State.

Columbus, August 22.—"If there are coal operators in Ohio, who are so utterly calloused to every principle of fair play in dealing with the public as to seek to extort exorbitant prices, as you point out, the people of Ohio want, and I believe have the right, to know who these concerns or individuals are," declared Governor Davis in a telegram to Secretary of Commerce Hoover requesting more specific information concerning charges of profiteering by Ohio coal operators.

"I request, therefore, that you make public the names of these operators that they may be dealt with as they deserve," Governor Davis wired Hoover.

In a telegram, Saturday, directed to Governor Davis, Secretary Hoover charged that certain Ohio operators were placing a price of from $7 to $10 per ton on coal following the Cleveland peace settlement, and suggested that definite action be taken to curb this profiteering.

Governor Davis informed Secretary Hoover that he has called for a meeting of operators and dealers to the end tomorrow in order to attempt to fix a fair price on coal, "not only for the dealers but for the consumer as well."

STRIKERS NOT TO BLAME FOR BLASTS

Washington, August 22.—Striking shopcraft unions all over the country today were ordered to form "vigilance committees" to aid local authorities. Aroused by repeated charges of railroad officials that strikers have been at the root of recent wrecks and bombing of buildings, Bert M. Jewell, strike leader today issued orders that the circumstances surrounding every such occurrence be investigated by a union official.

"I am sick and tired of having the strikers blamed for every wreck and fake bombing that comes along," Jewell said.

DEMAND REMOVAL OF ROY A. HAYNES

Washington Aug. 22.—A demand for the immediate removal of Roy A. Haynes, federal prohibition commissioner, on a charge of "defrauding the government" was made upon Secretary of the Treasury Mellon today by Representative Hill, Republican of Maryland. Hill accused Haynes of using the official franking provisions of his office to circulate propaganda for himself and the anti-saloon league.

TRAIN SERVICE STOPS AS MEN GO OUT ON STRIKE

Spencer, N. J., August 22.—With train service through this important junction point of the Southern Railway at an absolute standstill, due to the walkout of the railway trainmen, a meeting was to be held today to decide if the walkout would be made permanent. The strike took place when trainmen objected to the presence of the shopcrafts strike.

Princeton, Ind., August 22.—Freight and passenger service on the St. Louis to Louisville division of the Southern Railway was at a standstill today due to the walkout of fifty firemen here in protest against the presence of armed guards.

AGREEMENT SEEMS FAR OFF IN HARD COAL STRIKE PARLEY

Miners Refuse to Consider Arbitration in Any Form.

Philadelphia, Aug. 22.—United Mine Workers will offer the hard coal operators a peace solution of the extended anthracite strike by agreeing to accept the anthracite conciliation, with its present personnel, as a fact finding commission. The offer will include the old scale of wages until 1924 at which time the board is to have completed an investigation of the entire anthracite industry. The findings of that board would be reported to a joint conference of miners and operators and from the facts gathered a wage scale to start from April 1, 1924 would be worked out.

Philadelphia, August 22.—Anthracite operators have dressed arbitration in various sorts of clothes and given it several different names, but the representatives of the 155,000 striking hard coal miners recognize it in any disguise and positively have nothing to do with it.

Since last Thursday, union leaders and mine owners have been with their feet under a conference table suggesting, discussing and debating the wage question. They had argued the same point many times since last March and reported a deadlock on the same issue in June. Arbitration of the wage question after April 1 next was what the operators demanded and exactly what the miners opposed. They have reached an impasse again and despite the many efforts to dress up the old issue in new clothes the miners have their foot down good and hard and said "nothing doing" on arbitration.

Following yesterday's conference there was every indication and many admissions that the conference is on the verge of a break.

In face of this gloomy outlook, and despite the fact that each side admits the conference has reached the point where it has agreed to disagree, another session was called for this afternoon at 3 o'clock and some of the union leaders claimed a settlement could be brought about, how when or where not being designated.

MARTIAL TANGLE IN WEST REVEALED

San Francisco, August 22.—A martial tangle which set society and art circles agog was revealed today when it became known that Mrs. Kendrick was considering either divorce or a suit for alienation of affection as a result of what she charges was an affair, on the part of Mrs. Edith Huntington Spreckels Wakefield to buy her husband for $100 a month.

The unusual triangle promised to work out, beautifully until Mrs. Kendrick left the home of Mrs. Wakefield at Sausalito where she was a house guest, and consulted an attorney.

She said she reached her decision not to accept the offer of Mrs. Wakefield, while her husband, Rodney Kendrick, an artist and Mrs. Wakefield were already on a motor trip.

Lieut. Col. Paul W. Beck Exonerated By Officers; May Reopen Day Case

Dashing Aviator Met Death "in line of duty" Military Board Holds.

Washington, August 22.—Lieutenant Colonel Paul W. Beck, dashing army aviator, who died at the hands of Judge Jean Day of Oklahoma City, under sensational circumstances involving Day's beautiful young wife, was killed "in line of duty" according to final official report of the investigating board of army officers it was learned by the International News Service today.

The conclusions of the board are that there is no evidence worthy of credence to show the slain officer was guilty of any act reflecting upon his honor.

New evidence was brought out at the extended hearings held in Oklahoma City, the report states, which tends to discredit explanations of the killing given by Day at the coroner's inquest. Judge Day testified before the coroner's jury, he came home and found Beck attacking his wife. The army officer was killed, Judge Day declared, by a shot from Day's pistol, which was discharged during the struggle. The shooting followed a gay party at the Day home.

As a result of the verdict of the coroner's jury the authorities declined to prosecute Day.

The location of the wounds on Beck's body, considered in relation to Day's version of the struggle, the report says, convinced the board that it was impossible for Colonel Beck to have met death in the manner described.

The report recommends the new evidence be made available to the civil authorities of Oklahoma City with a view to reopening the case. Action now rests with Secretary of War Weeks, who it is assumed approved the report. The Secretary, it

He Will Walk Again After 39 Years.

Frederick W. Birge, fifty-two-year-old farmer, of Middlebury, Vt., is expected by physicians at the Hospital for Ruptured and Crippled, New York City, to walk again for the first time in thirty-nine years. His was the first case of infantile paralysis in Vermont and is said to be the longest on record that terminated in recovery, following multiple operations.

CHANDLER'S WIFE TO AID HUSBAND

Honolulu, August 22.—Mrs. Walter Chandler will return at once to Atlanta, Ga., to assist her husband in fighting the $100,000 suit brought there against her millionaire banker husband by Mrs. Clyde K. Byfield, wife of an Atlanta automobile dealer.

"I will return immediately to Atlanta to stand by my husband in this affair," she told International News Service today.

"I will fight to a finish to defend the honor of my husband which is concerned."

RUMOR MARRIAGE OF MISS M'CORMICK

Basle, Switzerland, August 22.—An unconfirmed report was in circulation here today that Major Max Oser, 47 years old Swiss riding master and his 17 year old fiancée, Miss Mathilde McCormick of Chicago grand daughter of John D. Rockefeller, had eloped either into Austria or Italy and been married.

Miss McCormick accompanied by a maid and a companion, came to Switzerland about a fortnight ago, ostensibly to meet her suitor and visit friends.

GERMANY WILL NOT AGREE TO ALLIED SEIZURE OF RUHR

Finance Minister Hermes Declares Country Will Not Permit Occupation.

Berlin, Aug. 22.—German Finance Minister Hermes, has informed Sir John Bradbury, British member of the Inter-Allied Reparations Commission, and M. Mauciere, chairman of the allied guarantees committee that "under no circumstances will the German government agree to allied seizure of the Ruhr basin coal mines and German state owned forests as pledges for a moratorium," it was learned authoritatively today.

Sir John Bradbury and M. Mauciere are now in Berlin investigating the productivity of the guarantees which Germany will furnish for an indemnity respite.

The declaration of Hermes was significant in view of the speech of Premier Poincare at Bar le Duc in which he stated that, France would not relinquish her program to seize the Ruhr coal fields.

The negotiations between the allied representatives and the German finance department began in earnest today, following the preliminary conversations on Monday. In the initial conference Herr Hermes laid down as a basic principle of the government the dictum that Germany would never consent to further military occupation of German soil by French troops.

It was understood that Herr Hermes would make proposals this afternoon for voluntary guarantees, by which Germany pledges virtual control of her finances to the allies in return for a cessation of reparations payments.

RUIN NOW FACED

Washington, August 22.—Hundreds of fruit and potato growers in the west will be utterly ruined by the continuation of the railway strike for another twenty days and this situation is intolerable, both railroads and strikers were told by Senator William E. Borah, Republican of Idaho in a plea for peace.

HARDING READY FOR WORST IN RAIL TROUBLE

OPTIMISM PREVAILS

Hopes For Peace Not Abandoned Despite Recent Attacks.

Washington, August 22.—A strong feeling of confidence that this week—perhaps tomorrow will see settlement of the railroad strike was apparent in official quarters this afternoon, following a lengthy session of the cabinet and the White House at which the industrial situation was thoroughly canvassed.

Washington, Aug. 22.—Hopeful for peace but preparing for trouble. This summed the attitude of the administration in the railroad strike situation today as President Harding met with his cabinet for another round table discussion of the industrial situation, and the policies that the government may be compelled to put into effect if tomorrow's joint conference between railway executives and strike leaders fails to establish the desired peace in the transportation industry.

The warlike utterances of the eastern executives, notably L. F. Loree, and W. W. Atterbury, did not materially jar the optimism that exists in government circles that a basis of adjustment will be established this week. It has been expected all along a cabinet officer said, that the eastern executives would oppose settlement of the strike on any but their own terms, and consequently the "no surrender" attitude of the "die hards" indicates little change in the situation.

"The problem is national not sectional," said an administration official. "And it is to be hoped it will be worked out along national lines. The conditions that prevail in the east perhaps do not prevail in the west and south."

"It should be remembered for one thing that the east cannot move the west's gigantic cars."

Secretary Davis and Hoover took to today's cabinet meeting reports showing favorable betterment in the coal situation. Already bituminous production is picking up as a result of the Cleveland agreement and reports from government observers indicate an anthracite agreement is at hand.

"In a very short time, with the slogan 'back to normalcy,' the nation was brought down from a high standard of prosperity to a low degree of poverty and privation," continued Chairman Duffy.

"The price of farm products was greatly reduced, labor was compelled to accept reductions in wages and millions were thrown out of employment and subjected to want and privation. Confronted with this deplorable condition, the Republican leaders had no remedy except deflation."

"They said that everything must be deflated to get back to normalcy," said Chairman Duffy.

"So, they deflated the farmer, they deflated labor, they deflated business in fact they deflated the comfort and happiness of the American people. The people now realize that they were deceived in the election of 1920 and are eagerly waiting for the opportunity to deflate the Republican party."

DEMANDS APOLOGY FROM COP WHO ARRESTED GIRL

Cleveland, Aug. 22.—Robert H. McLaughlin, playwright, producer and manager of the Ohio Theater today demanded a public apology or dismissal from the force of Patrolman Leroy Beed, who late yesterday arrested his secretary, Miss Gertrude Bracker, for "jay walking" at east Ninth-St. and Euclid Ave. While hundreds of curious people gathered about, the policeman rang for a patrol wagon, placed Miss Bracker inside, and she was driven to the police station. At the station Miss Bracker in a state of hysterical collapse, was prevailed upon to sign a "confession" of her "guilt."

"It was an outrage to make a public example of a young woman and force her to ride in a police emergency vehicle like a crook," said McLaughlin. "Her arm is black and blue where the policeman grasped her."

Miss Bracker was the second person and first woman ever arrested for "jay walking" here. She claims the traffic still was moving in her direction when she started across the street.

'BEER' EPISODE IS DEFIANCE OF LAW

Washington, Aug. 22.—Prohibition Director John T. Davis of Pennsylvania, reported today to Prohibition Commissioner Haynes that the Johnstown, Pa., beer episode resulted from Mayor Caffie's desire for "no-liquor" and was "flagrant defiance of the constitution." Davis said there had been no flood of real beer, but that much "near beer" had been sold.

PEACE IN ILLINOIS COAL WAR IS NEAR

Chicago, Aug. 22.—The coal strike that has threatened to paralyze industry in state of Illinois has been settled except for the formality of ratification of the agreement by the joint scale committee of miners and operators, it was stated this morning. Shortly after the miners and operators met, Farrington, head of the Illinois miners left with his associates to report to the miners scale committee. It is expected that the order to return to work will be issued tonight and that Illinois mines will be in operation by noon tomorrow.

In deciding that Beck met his death "in line of duty" the board considered the following facts.

First that Beck's presence in Oklahoma City was authorized, since he was there on an official exhibition flight. Second that there was nothing improper in his presence in the Day home, since he was a formally invited guest. Third, that inasmuch as Day's explanation of the killing was discredited by the facts in the case and witnesses who testified before the board, there is nothing to support the charge of improper conduct on the part of the slain officer, the report declares.

When approved by Secretary Weeks the board's report technically clears the otherwise unstained record of

PLATFORM PLANKS TO BE HEWED AT POLITICAL CONVENTIONS TUESDAY

Fess Touted as Permanent Chairman of Republican Meeting Which Opens in Columbus at Four O'Clock—To Select Committees.

Columbus, Aug. 22.—Platform planks, upon which will be based Ohio's political contests this fall and "keynote" speeches will mark the scheduled speakers are: Judge Hugh Democratic and Republican state Conventions which open here this afternoon.

Chairman T. J. Duffy, state industrial commissioner as temporary chairman is to deliver the keynote address at the Democratic convention starting in the Grand Theater at 1 p. m. The convention is expected to adjourn sine die this evening. Other scheduled speakers are: Judge Hugh Nichols, Batavia, slated for permanent chairman; United States Senator, Canton, candidate for reelection and Vic Donahey, New Philadelphia, Democratic nominee for governor.

A temporary chairman, Congressman S. D. Fess, Yellow Springs, Republican nominee for United States senator, is to deliver the keynote address at the opening session of the Republican convention which is to begin at 4 o'clock. It is expected that Congressman Fess will be chosen as permanent chairman also.

Today's session of the G. O. P. convention will be marked also by the selection of standing committees and effecting a permanent organization.

At a session tomorrow morning, addresses by Carmel A. Thompson, Cleveland, Republican nominee for governor and Governor Harry L. Davis are expected to precede adoption of a platform.

Columbus, August 22.—Charging that "plutocracy has ruled in this nation with an iron hand, a wooden head and a stony heart" during the past two years, Chairman P. J. Duffy state industrial commissioner, as temporary chairman, sounded the "keynote" of Ohio Democracy here this afternoon at the Democratic state convention.

In an address featured by vitriolic assaults upon both the federal and state administrations, Chairman Duffy announced that "all of the candidates for state offices on the Democratic ticket, this year are men of the highest type and well qualified for the duties of the respective offices to which they aspire."

After eulogizing former President Woodrow Wilson and former Governor James M. Cox, and referring to the achievements of their respective administrations, Chairman Duffy charged that the plutocrats, by financing the most ignoble campaign of misrepresentation, passion and hatred the nation has ever witnessed, brought about the defeat of the Democratic party in 1920.

"In a very short time, with the slogan 'back to normalcy,' the nation was brought down from a high standard of prosperity to a low degree of poverty and privation," continued Chairman Duffy.

"The price of farm products was greatly reduced, labor was compelled to accept reductions in wages and millions were thrown out of employment and subjected to want and privation. Confronted with this deplorable condition, the Republican leaders had no remedy except deflation."

"So, they deflated the farmer, they deflated labor, they deflated business in fact; they deflated the comfort and happiness of the American people. The people now realize that they were deceived in the election of 1920 and are eagerly waiting for the opportunity to deflate the Republican party."

DEMANDS APOLOGY FROM COP WHO ARRESTED GIRL

Cleveland, Aug. 22.—Robert H. McLaughlin, playwright, producer and manager of the Ohio Theater today demanded a public apology or dismissal from the force of Patrolman Leroy Beed, who late yesterday arrested his secretary, Miss Gertrude Bracker, for "jay walking" at east Ninth-St. and Euclid Ave. While hundreds of curious people gathered about, the policeman rang for a patrol wagon, placed Miss Bracker inside, and she was driven to the police station. At the station Miss Bracker in a state of hysterical collapse, was prevailed upon to sign a "confession" of her "guilt."

"It was an outrage to make a public example of a young woman and force her to ride in a police emergency vehicle like a crook," said McLaughlin. "Her arm is black and blue where the policeman grasped her."

Miss Bracker was the second person and first woman ever arrested for "jay walking" here. She claims the traffic still was moving in her direction when she started across the street.

'BEER' EPISODE IS DEFIANCE OF LAW

Washington, Aug. 22.—Prohibition Director John T. Davis of Pennsylvania, reported today to Prohibition Commissioner Haynes that the Johnstown, Pa., beer episode resulted from Mayor Cauffiel's desire for "no-liquor" and was "flagrant defiance of the constitution." Davis said there had been no flood of real beer, but that much "near beer" had been sold.

OPTIMISM PREVAILS

Hopes For Peace Not Abandoned Despite Recent Attacks.

Washington, August 22.—A strong feeling of confidence that this week—perhaps tomorrow will see settlement of the railroad strike was apparent in official quarters this afternoon, following a lengthy session of the cabinet and the White House at which the industrial situation was thoroughly canvassed.

Washington, Aug. 22.—Hopeful for peace but preparing for trouble.

This summed the attitude of the administration in the railroad strike situation today as President Harding met with his cabinet for another round table discussion of the industrial situation, and the policies that the government may be compelled to put into effect if tomorrow's joint conference between railway executives and strike leaders fails to establish the desired peace in the transportation industry.

The warlike utterances of the eastern executives, notably L. F. Loree, and W. W. Atterbury, did not materially jar the optimism that exists in government circles that a basis of adjustment will be established this week. It has been expected all along a cabinet officer said, that the eastern executives would oppose settlement of the strike on any but their own terms, and consequently the "no surrender" attitude of the "die hards" indicates little change in the situation.

"The problem is national not sectional," said an administration official. "And it is to be hoped it will be worked out along national lines. The conditions that prevail in the east perhaps do not prevail in the west and south."

"It should be remembered for one thing that the east cannot move the west's gigantic crops. Secretaries Davis and Hoover took to today's cabinet meeting reports showing favorable betterment in the coal situation. Already bituminous production is picking up as a result of the Cleveland agreement and reports from government observers indicate an anthracite agreement is at hand."

POMERENE CHARGES EVIDENCE AGAINST NEWBERRY UNTOLD

Senator Replies to Statement of Secretary of State Hughes.

Columbus, August 22.—While investigating charges of alleged excessive expenditures in connection with the campaign of Senator Newberry, of Michigan, for the United States senate, the senate committee on privileges and elections unearthed evidence not disclosed in the court records when the United States Supreme Court, found senator Newberry not guilty of violating the corrupt practices act. This is the claim made by United States Senator Pomerene, commenting upon Secretary of State Hughes recent statements upholding the Supreme Court's action.

Senator Pomerene stated that Frederick P. Smith, "a confidential agent and attorney of the Newberry interests" testified before the senate committee that he drew so heavily on the Newberry funds that Senator Newberry called him, wanting to know when they would stop.

Secretary Hughes prior to his selection as a member of President Harding's cabinet, was counsel for senator Newberry and argued in defense of the senator before the United States supreme court.

PEACE IN ILLINOIS COAL WAR IS NEAR

It was stated this morning. Shortly after the miners and operators met, Farrington, head of the Illinois miners left with his associates to report to the miners scale committee. It is expected that the order to return to work will be issued tonight and that Illinois mines will be in operation by noon tomorrow.

ROUND THE WORLD FLYERS ARE SAFE

MAN 77
Cincinnati August 22.—Screwing up his courage as car after car of a long freight train rolled by, Ed. Bruns, 77, summoned the necessary nerve and lunged forward to his death under the wheels of the last two cars on the Baltimore and Ohio railroad tracks here last night. The police at first were unable to identify the man, but identification was established by a man at whose home he had roomed.

Styles BY LENORE

If getting the school wardrobe ready is an anxious period for mother there are no wrinkles on daughter's smooth brow, for in the planning and shopping and assembling of new clothes she finds one of her greatest compensations for the ending of sunny play days.

First to be considered of course, are those dresses which bear the brunt of school wear—the utility frock of serge, or it may be of ep-once, duvety or twill cloth. Navy blue with a touch of scarlet will be good. Brown and dark green are also said to be on the fall color card. A modish, youthful suit is more apt to favor a coat that is unbelated and many of the coats are moderately flared. If the suit is to be used with afternoon blouses, the sleeve may be cut wider at the wrist so that the cuff of the blouse sleeve may provide a decorative touch. Then, too, many girls will like the tweed cape costumes, which have virtually become a flapper uniform.

The frock in the sketch is a suggestion for an afternoon dress; the original of which was exhibited in black satin, but this style will look equally quaint and charming in white jade, any of the pastel shades and deep rose.

SAID CAN'T BE DONE

"My experience with doctors and medicines caused me to lose faith in both and when a friend told me that May's Wonderful Remedy would cure my stomach trouble I told him 'it can't be done.' However, he finally persuaded me to try it and to my surprise it did. All symptoms of acute indigestion and gas having disappeared." It is a simple, harmless preparation that removes the catarrhal mucus from the intestinal tract and allays the inflammation which causes practically all stomach and intestinal ailments, including appendicitis. One dose will convince or money refunded. Sayre & Hemphill and druggists everywhere.

SURPRISE GEORGE HUDSON ON HIS BIRTHDAY

A company of the friends of George Hudson gave him a jolly surprise at his home on West Market Street, Monday evening the occasion being his birthday.

Each guest took a toy to which was attached a card bearing a verse of appropriate jingle. During the evening various games were enjoyed and the toys afforded much merriment. Refreshments of ices and cakes were served and instead of the usual birthday cake, little individual cakes white iced, each bearing a tiny lighted pink taper, formed the centerpiece for the table.

About twenty were present at the enjoyable affair.

Mrs. Cha. Davis, of South King St. has been confined to her home for several days by illness.

BELIEVES CASE IS CLOSED INCIDENT

Oklahoma City, Okla., Aug. 22.—"If the federal authorities present any new evidence in the case of the shooting of Lieutenant Colonel Ward Beck by Judge Jean P. Day, I will gladly consider it, and if necessary reopen the case," Forest L. Hughes, county attorney announced today when shown an International News Service despatch from Washington. Hughes declared however, that he believed nothing more would come of the case.

ACTIVE TEACHING CAREER IS ENDED IN RESIGNATION

The resignation of Miss Jean B. Elwell, from the faculty of Central High School, made public Tuesday by Superintendent of Schools C. A. Waltz, brings to an end the longest teaching career enjoyed by any teacher in the city.

Although Miss Elwell handed in her resignation to the superintendent some time ago, public announcement of her move in severing connection with the schools was not made public until Tuesday, when the list of assignments for the coming school year was given out by the school head.

For many years Miss Elwell guided the destinies of the English Department of Central High School and school men who have come and gone have given her the credit for maintaining that department at the highest possible standard during her regime. Hundreds of students, who have studied under Miss Elwell during her years of teaching here could also pay tribute to her, as she was a favorite faculty member, and reached the crest of her popularity and achievement each year, in her annual direction and presentation of the Senior Class Play.

During her regime, Miss Elwell has won for Central High School, an enviable reputation for its departments of English, rhetoric and elocution, and her former pupils will be pleased to know that school officials have made her life-long honorary head of the department by conferring on her the newly-created title of Supervisor Emeritus of the department, the first time such an honor has been given. During the coming school year Miss Elwell will probably teach one class in her department, and she will always act in an advisory position, where the benefit of her long years of experience will still be available, and she can still make her influence felt.

Following her resignation to Superintendent Waltz, Miss Elwell, who is enjoying a vacation at a summer cottage near Cleveland, addressed the following letter to the board of education:

"As you know from the Superintendent, I have decided to discontinue teaching. You each must realize that, after years of service, I am gratefully conscious of obligation to the Board of Education for—well for all that a happy relation with that body has meant; and although its personnel has changed, still you represent the wish and the need of our community.

"It is superfluous to say that I've tried to give the best I have or could acquire to the youth for whose welfare I have been largely responsible; and this purpose, with your support, has, perhaps, helped to correct errors when enthusiasm may have outrun intelligence.

"Looking back in perspective at my relation to the schools, I'm not conscious that ever there was drudgery connected with the work, for there has been so much joy in it all; in my department, it is not the subject but the student that is to be taught; and in no place can there be found a group of finer boys and girls; some of the most sacred and beautiful friendships of my life are the fruitage of school-room activities.

"And just here, I cannot forbear to note the happy relations I have enjoyed with comrades in the profession.

"My interest is not abated concerning the problems you are solving for the highest interests of the community.

"Yours most respectfully,
"Jean B. Elwell."

NAMED PRESIDENT OF NO-TOBACCO LEAGUE AT MEET

Dr. J. Knox Montgomery, president of Muskingum College, New Concord, Ohio, and formerly Ohio State president of the No-Tobacco League of America, was elected president of the national organization at the meeting held recently at Winona Lake, Indiana.

Mrs. Carrie Flatter, national second vice president of the League, was the only representative of the local organization in attendance at the meeting. Levi Minnick, of Greenville, is a new member of the board of directors, and R. N. Leonard, director, now represents California, having removed from Delaware, Ohio, to Los Angeles. Mrs. L. Elizabeth Wooster, of Topeka, Kansas, was named State Superintendent of Public Instruction at the convention.

Reports made at the national convention indicate that the organization is growing. Eight states are now organized and two more are ready for organization. Among new members named to the advisory board are Roger Babson, of Boston, Mass., and Henry King, of Oberlin.

The national organization is also planning a Boosting Battalion, to educate the public to the now-known effects of the cigarette and tobacco habit. The search committee of 50 scientists will soon be able to give a further report, which will only substantiate its previous reports of the evils of tobacco, it is said. A report will also soon be ready showing the percentage of efficiency lost by the use of tobacco.

GREAT BRITAIN IS NOT DONE WITH IRELAND IS WORD

London, Aug. 22.—Great Britain is not done with Ireland.

This firm conviction is reluctantly but nevertheless generally admitted in Government circles despite the fact that the British Government has had little or nothing to do with the Irish Free State since that eventful Summer night when "Mick" Collins' army fired the first shell into the Four Courts and started a civil war that threatens to know no end until Ireland lies in devastation.

Winston Churchill, Colonial Secretary, confidently voices the hope that the Irish Free State will restore Ireland to peace and order and that good government will soon be an accomplished fact, but these statements are for publication. The private views of the Government are that Great Britain will eventually have to again resume some measure of control over Ireland.

The British Government is not anxious to again become active in Ireland, and it is probable that it will strive to keep clear of such intervention, but it seems certain now that there must be at least fiscal supervision from Great Britain if nothing else.

Ireland is daily piling up a huge war debt, and according to all reports reaching London the revenues are falling far short of the expenditures. Ireland is apparently treading the path which leads to bankruptcy.

Great Britain will not allow Ireland to go into bankruptcy. This has been officially stated to International News Service. What measures Great Britain will take are not disclosed, but it is learned from authoritative sources that the British Government may find it necessary to exercise a fiscal control in Ireland, holding a whiphand over expenditures and forcing the collection of revenues. Whether it would be possible for Great Britain to take such a step without forcing an open break with the Irish Free State is a matter of considerable doubt.

Under the provisions of the Irish Treaty a stable government must be established in Ireland by next December or the treaty will automatically become ineffective. Whether Michael Collins and his colleagues can establish a government within the next four months remains for the future to tell. At least it is certain that Great Britain will do all in its power to prevent the collapse of the treaty, for Great Britain is happy to have Ireland off its hands.

The Irish extremists are anxious for the collapse of the treaty and are striving with all their powers to that end. If Britain returns to Ireland it will be the fault of the extremists, but they will not bear the burden for the return of Britain is sure to bring a new outbreak of Irish indignation which will restore the horrible conditions which prevailed prior to December, 1921.

PEGGY DEAL AWAITING TRIAL FOR MURDER OF "PERFECT LOVER" RECEIVES THOUSAND LETTERS FROM "FRIENDS"

Kansas City, Mo., Aug. 22.—One thousand letters, 300 of them proposals of marriage, have been received by Marie (Peggy) Deal, the black eyed, bobbed haired beauty awaiting trial for the murder of Frank Warren Anderson, her "perfect lover" she revealed today.

Miss Deal shot and killed Anderson in a down town hotel two months ago when she suddenly discovered she was "fiftieth" love. The men who want to marry Peggy are from all walks of life. A Detroit minister knows she is "not all bad" and would "lift her up"; a Galveston sea captain would take her far out on the briny, so she could forget the past; a widower of San Diego is certain she would make a "good pal" while a convict in San Quentin prison writes that he is doing fancy work and will soon have $90 enough to get a divorce.

SEPTEMBER WILL SEE END OF FIGHTING IN IRELAND DECLARES FOREIGN HEAD

BY MARLAN E. PEW.

Dublin, Aug. 22.—"I am happy to advise friends of the Irish free state in the United States that we have the republican irregular situation well in hand and that the beginning of next month will see the end of the fighting." This declaration was made to the International News service today by William E. Cosgrave, who is acting as foreign secretary in the Irish provisional government in succession to the late Arthur Griffith.

Mr. Cosgrave continued: "The armed forces under Eamonn De Valera are a doubtful thousand, whereas, a month ago he probably had 10,000 at his command.

"We estimate the material damage done in the fighting at $100,000,000. The greatest loss, however, was in retarding constructive plans which the government contemplated carrying out in the next three years.

"DeValera and his fellow leaders are unquestionably unbalanced. Their followers are made up of men overwrought by their war experience and by idleness.

"As a distinguished American prelate said this morning, De Valera is a mathematician and his chief fondness is in making divisions.

"It should be borne in mind that DeValera, Erskin Childers and many leaders associated with them are not Irish were conducting war against the Black and Tans. They are trying their hardest to get the English to return to Ireland, but it is the duty of our government to prevent this catastrophe at all costs. There is every prospect that for the next month the chief business of the Dublin government will be of a military nature.

"Many ask why the government does not arrest the irregular leaders and treat them harshly. But these people that ask this question would be the first to cry out if the government did adopt such measures.

"To arrest the Republican leaders would only 'martyrize' them. They are fast wearing themselves out. Even if the government was forced to arrest De Valera it would release him as soon as the danger is passed.

"The actions of the irregulars are deeply regretted, not only on account of the losses, but because they have been retarding the progress of the country. The world expects much from the free state, but the activities of the Irish have given the world a

A happy family gathering was held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Amos Frame, Friday, the occasion being the seventy-sixth birthday of Mrs. Frame's father, Mr. Albert Burrell.

Covers were laid for thirty guests for dinner, the color scheme of red and white being carried out throughout the rooms and in the table appointments. Place cards engraved by Mrs. Stanley Boltz were found at each place, a large birthday cake presiding at one end of the table.

The guest list included Mr. Albert Burrell, and daughters, Maude and Edna, Mr. and Mrs. F. M. Burrell and family Mrs. R. M. Charles, and son Arthur and daughter Kathleen of Cleveland, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Clemans, Mr. and Mrs. O. M. Burrell, and family, of Springfield Mr. and Mrs. C. L. false opinion of the character of the Irish people."

"What is the leading constructive measure now planned?" Mr. Cosgrave was asked. He replied:

"It is impossible to do anything until the present military situation is solved. But our minds are anxiously turning to thoughts of relief for the people and to the correcting of age-long wrongs which our people have suffered.

"The greatest immediate necessary is housing and coping with unemployment. The unemployed in Dublin are estimated at one out of every twenty of the population.

"You see terrible conditions in the slums of Farnell and Gloucester street. They cry out for relief. It is heart sickening to think that money which would be spent for the relief of these poor people has to be spent in military measures for the defense of the free state.

"Ireland needs 70,000 more houses. The government has appropriated under a sound financial scheme, five million pounds sterling for this purpose. We are only awaiting a cessation of hostilities to begin work of relieving the housing shortage. "The government's chief objective was to make every citizen feel that he had the protection of a stable government; also, to educate a high civic spirit in every one in the community. Equitable land division is a high necessity. The English rule made for bad economic conditions as has been exemplified by the living conditions in Comemara and West Ireland where the people are on the verge of starvation and are badly housed. Their futile lives contract with those of the rich. The level tracts of Ireland are barely inhabited. One problem is to break up the unwholesome estates into small farms. This demands a redistribution of the Irish people and redistribution of lands. But I want to make plain that the free state government does not plan conflict.

SURPRISE GEORGE HUDSON ON HIS BIRTHDAY

A company of the friends of George Hudson gave him a jolly surprise at his home on West Market Street, Monday evening the occasion being his birthday.

Each guest took a toy to which was attached a card bearing a verse of appropriate jingle. During the evening various games were enjoyed and the toys afforded much merriment. Refreshments of legs and cakes were served and instead of the usual birthday cake, little individual cakes white iced, each bearing a tiny lighted pink taper, formed the centerpiece for the table.

About twenty were present at the enjoyable affair.

Mrs. Cha. Davis, of South King St. has been confined to her home for several days by illness.

BELIEVES CASE IS CLOSED INCIDENT

Day, I will gladly consider it, and if necessary reopen the case," Forest L. Hughes, county attorney announced today when shown an International News Service despatch from Washington. Hughes declared however, that he believed nothing more would come of the case.

ACTIVE TEACHING CAREER IS ENDED IN RESIGNATION

The resignation of Miss Jean B. Elwell, from the faculty of Central High School, made public Tuesday by Superintendent of Schools C. A. Waltz, brings to an end the longest teaching career enjoyed by any teacher in the city.

Although Miss Elwell handed in her resignation to the superintendent some time ago, public announcement of her move in severing connection with the schools was not made public until Tuesday, when the list of assignments for the coming school year was given out by the school board.

For many years Miss Elwell guided the destinies of the English Department of Central High School and school men who have come and gone, have given her the credit for maintaining that department at the highest possible standard during her regime. Hundreds of students, who have studied under Miss Elwell during her years of teaching here, could also pay tribute to her, as she was a favorite faculty member, and reached the crest of her popularity and achievement each year, in her annual direction and presentation of the Senior Class Play.

During her regime, Miss Elwell has won for Central High School, an enviable reputation for its departments of English, rhetoric and elocution, and her former pupils will be pleased to know that school officials have made her life-long honorary head of the department by conferring on her the newly-created title of Supervisor Emeritus of the department, the first time such an honor has been given. During the coming school year Miss Elwell will probably teach one class in her department, and she will always act in an advisory position, where the benefit of her long years of experience will still be available, and she can still make her influence felt.

Following her resignation to Superintendent Waltz, Miss Elwell, who is enjoying a vacation at a summer cottage near Cleveland, addressed the following letter to the board of education:

"As you know from the Superintendent, I have decided to discontinue teaching. You each must realize that, after years of service, I am gratefully conscious of obligation to the Board of Education for—well for all that a happy relation with that body has meant; and although its personnel has changed, still you represent the wish and the need of our community.

These cooler days remind us of the fact that autumn is just around the corner and will soon be here in all its glory. But we are good and ready for it. Our buyers have just returned from New York where they have bought the most fascinating array of new fall clothes. No doubt you are anxious to know about the new and popular materials and colors and I will try to tell you a little about them as soon as we get the new stuff unpacked. These are interesting days here in the store.

THE OHIO CAMPAIGN.

Designation of the senatorial nominee as the state convention spellbinder is believed to have resulted from a suggestion made by President Harding when Colonel Thompson and Dr. Fess called upon him to discuss the advisability of inviting Charles E. Hughes, Secretary of State, to sound the keynote of the state campaign.

It is said that the President, without appearing in the slightest to disparage the ability of Secretary Hughes as a convention orator, questioned whether a Cabinet officer or any official of the Federal Government would fit properly in the picture at a state convention this year, particularly so since the issue of domination from Washington had entered so prominently heretofore in the primary election campaign.

The two nominees were fortified with views of Republican members of the House from Ohio who are candidates for reelection, with whom they ate luncheon at the Capitol.

Out of this conference developed an understanding, it was announced by Dr. Fess, that team work between congressional and state candidates would be maintained to an extent that would prevent any appearance of clash between candidates for state and Federal offices.

It is needless to say that we Republicans of Greene County appreciate it as an added honor that our member of Congress was selected as the State Convention orator, who will in effect lay down the political principles upon which the coming campaign will be conducted, and this because of his ability.

Hurrah for Fess for the U. S. Senate.

THREE CHEERS AND A TIGER.

The final Senate rollcall on the McCumber tariff came Saturday. The Senate will breathe a deep breath of relief, for it has had the tariff with it for a long year. It is dealing with it in weariness and a sort of desperation. The main thing is to get it over with.

There had to be a tariff. It is a sort of political law that a party coming into power must tinker with the tariff before the off-year elections. Business, expecting a tariff and given to understand that there would be a revision, has been waiting uncertainly.

By 1924 this tariff may have proved its worth and its wisdom, but it is the truth that it must be defended ably this fall if it is not to prove a liability to the Republican Party. Its strength in 1922 will be in the farm districts, for it incorporates the farm-protection features of the emergency tariff that was passed so hurriedly last year. There it will need little defense. The tariff on wheat is 30 cents per bushel, on corn 20 cents, on beef and veal 3 1/2 cents, lamb 5 cents, on pork heavy. All of these, under the Underwood tariff, came in free.

Then, of course, all manufactured articles are heavily taxed, and consequently the worker protected. We are not going to have pauper made goods to compete with our's. We want our boys to have roast beef as often as possible.

THE PRESIDENT'S SPEECH.

President Harding Friday, addressing a joint session of Congress on the industrial crisis resulting from the coal and railroad strikes, pledged himself to use the full power of the Federal Government to maintain transportation and the right of men to work, to enforce all existing laws against employers and employees alike, to punish offenders against law and order without fear or favor.

The President's address was received with warm applause by members of the Senate and House of both parties, and by the well-filled galleries of the House chamber, where the joint session was conducted.

The applause reached its height when the President said it was his purpose to invoke all civil and criminal laws of the United States to protect the public and to punish offenders in the industrial-crisis.

When he spoke of the dignity of the law and the necessity for enforcement the handclapping was particularly enthusiastic. Senators Oscar W. Underwood, Alabama, Democratic floor leader; Atlee Pomerene, Ohio; Gilbert M. Hitchcock, Nebraska, and other prominent Democrats leading in the demonstration along with Senator Henry Cabot Lodge, Massachusetts, majority leader and members of the President's Cabinet, who occupied seats on the floor.

WHAT THE CINCINNATI ENQUIRER SAID ON SATURDAY.

No exaggeration or fulsome flattery is intended when the assertion is made that President Warren G. Harding Friday announced a new charter of human liberty and restated the Declaration of Independence when he laid before the Congress of the United States his views and recommendations concerning the fuel and transportation strikes now afflicting the people.

The time has arrived in this country when the Government of the people shall be the law of the land and no decrees issued from secret cameras shall control. The hour has struck for the retirement of the violence-sustained dictators, and the knell is sounding for the punishment of the red-handed assassins and the retirement of the spineless officials who, through cowardice or consent, have failed to perform their sworn duty to protect society.

DO YOU KNOW?

Barley is cultivated as far north as Lapland.

The import of German dyestuffs to Japan is increasing.

Nearly 100,000,000 bushels of grain is shipped from New York every year.

Cigar factories in the Tampa district turn out nearly 1,000,000 cigars a day.

The United States exports on an average of 250,000 typewriters every year.

The United States furnishes approximately 40 per cent of the world's supply of coal.

DUN' KNOW, MAYBE THEY WON'T BE GOIN' FURENOUGH TO DO 'EM MUCH GOOD.

Leon, the eight-year-old son of Chief of Police Smith, was bitten by a dog last evening, the animal sinking its teeth in the child's cheek. The wound was dressed and no ill effects are feared.

Some of the Greene County farmers are figuring on having seventy bushels of corn to the acre this fall and from the appearance of the fields they are not far wrong in their estimates.

Xenia is a city and not a village under the new municipal code of Governor Nash, if it becomes a law. The Governor today made a radical change in the code by striking out 10,000 as a population requisite and substituting 5,000. Xenia has a population of 8,696.

ANSWERED LETTERS

Constant Reader:—You probably have a very dry skin. The best daily face treatment for you is as follows: place old soap, white muslin, wrung from hot water, over the skin until the pores are open. Massage in a good cold cream then wash the face thoroughly with hot water and castile soap. Follow this up with a cold rinse or an ice rub. The starch treatment you mention would be very good if you had an oily complexion.

Brunette:—It is very difficult to bleach a naturally dark complexion. The mild skin bleaches (the cucumber milk and the honey almond cream) sometimes advised in this column are helpful.

Mrs. Smith:—It would be wrong for you to take drugs to reduce your weight. Since you are getting fat you must be eating too much. It is natural that you should grow stout this year on the same amount of food which did not produce flesh last year. This is because the operation you went through has improved your health, enabling you to derive more nourishment from your food.

John:—You probably have a bad habit of twisting your face to one side. You can get rid of this deep line by breaking the habit. Also massage the face with a good skin food and follow with an astringent.

Olive:—Your symptoms show that your scalp is too dry, which accounts for the hair splitting off. The dandruff, also, comes from this condition. Get some crude oil and rub into the scalp the night before you plan to shampoo the hair. The oil should be well rubbed in and as hot as can be borne, as it will open the pores and be taken up by the skin. Next morning use two complete lathers of castile soap to remove all traces of this treatment. It is also necessary to protect the bed linen or the oil will stain it.

Coraldine:—Dance with your girl friends till you are more sure of your self, or dance alone until you do it better.

Violet:—The combination of burning, pimples and dark circles under the eyes make me think you are probably in poor health. Certainly you have impurities in your blood otherwise you would not have any pimples at all. The dark circles indicate poor health, nervousness and sometimes a slight internal trouble. In any case it would be best to ask your doctor for a tonic to build you up.

Today's Talk

by George Matthew Adams

THIS SOUL OF MINE

An appreciative reader of these Talks has written me a letter. And here is what she has asked me: "I wonder if you would give us your definition of that very elusive, very necessary something that is known as the soul."

I shall do my best—but the definition and understanding must be all my own. I can't be asked to be right about this definition of mine.

I am reminded of the first thing that my Mother taught me:

"Now I lay me down to sleep;
I pray the Lord my soul to keep—
If I should die before I wake,
I pray the Lord my soul to take."

I have no idea who wrote that beautiful little prayer, but in it you will note that, the thought is all about the soul.

The new-born baby is a "dear little soul." The useful life that is ended is spoken of as a "beautiful soul." And the last sleep that comes is not of the body—which "to dust must return"—but that of the soul.

This soul of mine! What is it? I rather think it is the pure gold of me—which no one is able to see or to place their fingers upon, but which they feel the moment I am transparently clean and whole.

But to define it adequately—I wonder who can? I wonder who can define the golds and purples and the browns and ambers of the pansy that smiles its soul to me as I lean to caress its beauty in my heart?

I wonder who is able to define the mystic meaning of a sunset or a star—these things which we are able to see with our eyes?

Why am I understood—just a little? I have often asked this soul of mine this question. But the answer comes not at all. And I am left in the presence of mystery as profound as that which has knelt at the feet of the great Sphinx for ages and ages.

And yet this soul of mine is a present thing! I wrap my thoughts about it; it will under the stars at night—and with the breaking of morn ask of it, as I would the dearest. What shall I do? How may I do it best?

Where am I to go when trouble comes? In whose arms, strong and able, shall I be held when difficulties pack tightest? When all that I hold choicest shall seem to be swept from beneath my feet, what shall I do?

I shall ask this soul of mine—in confidence and in faith. It shall answer though I hear not its voice. But I shall be satisfied!

But if I once for office ran, the habit I would gain; I'd be no more a placid man, serene and safe and sane. I'd cease to thrum my tuneful lyre, I'd seek the farmer at his byre, the merchant in his store; I'd nail the roundsman on his beat, the rustic herding goats, the crossing sweeper on the street, to bone them for their votes. I'd work the same old bag of tricks until my name was Mud; the germ of office hunting sticks, when once it's in the blood.

Today's Talk

by George Matthew Adams

THIS SOUL OF MINE

An appreciative reader of these Talks has written me a letter. And here is what she has asked me: "I wonder if you would give us your definition of that very elusive, very necessary something that is known as the soul."

I shall do my best—but the definition and understanding must be all my own. I can't be asked to be right about this definition of mine.

I am reminded of the first thing that my Mother taught me:

"Now I lay me down to sleep; I pray the Lord my soul to keep—If I should die before I wake, I pray the Lord my soul to take."

I have no idea who wrote that beautiful little prayer, but in it you will note that the thought is all about the soul.

The new-born baby is a "dear little soul." The useful life that is ended is spoken of as a "beautiful soul." And the last sleep that comes is not of the body—which "to dust must return"—but that of the soul.

This soul of mine? What is it? I rather think it is the pure gold of me—which no one is able to see or to place their fingers upon, but which they feel the moment I am transparently clean and whole.

But to define it adequately—I wonder who can? I wonder who can define the golds and purples and the browns and ambers of the pansy that smiles its soul to me as I lean to caress its beauty in my heart? I wonder who is able to define the mystic meaning of a sunset or a star—these things which we are able to see with our eyes?

Why am I understood—just a little? Or misunderstood—quite much? I have often asked this soul of mine this question. But the answer comes no; at all. And I am left in the presence of mystery as profound as that which has knelt at the feet of the great Sphinx for ages and ages.

And yet this soul of mine is a present thing! I wrap my thoughts about it; its will under the stars at night—and with the breaking of morn ask of it, as I would the dearest Pal what shall I do? How may I do it best?

Where am I to go when trouble comes? In whose arms, strong and able, shall I be held when difficulties pack tightest? When all that I hold choicest shall seem to be swept from beneath my feet, what shall I do?

I shall ask this soul of mine—in confidence and in faith. It shall answer though I hear not its voice. But I shall be satisfied!

NEW DIRECTORS OF C. OF C. WILL BE ELECTED BY BODY

Eight new directors of the Chamber of Commerce will have to be elected during the primary and regular election which will be started this week.

Miss Janice Owens, office manager of the Chamber of Commerce is now preparing ballots for the printer, which will be sent out for the regular primary election Thursday. The primary ballots must be returned September 1, and then the regular election ballots will go out, and will be returnable September 8.

Sixteen nominations, instead of 12 will be made by the more than 200 paid up members of the Chamber of Commerce this fall. Twelve names have been nominated in the past, and from these, twelve, six chosen to take position on the board, assuming the place of six directors who retire annually from service.

With the resignation from the board some time ago of former president C. A. Weaver and of J. Kenneth Williamson, there will be eight vacancies existing at the expiration of the present terms. For this reason, the ballots will have places for writing in sixteen names, and a roster of the organization membership will be enclosed from which members can select their nominees.

An election committee will be appointed before the primary ballots return and this committee will count the ballots and establish the sixteen candidates receiving the highest votes. The names of these candidates will then be printed on the regular ballots and sent out to members, each voter to vote for eight candidates.

When the regular election ballots are counted, the eight nominees receiving the highest vote will thus be elected permanently to membership on the board for two years, and will succeed the six directors whose terms expire this fall and the two directors who have resigned to seats in the governing body of the Chamber.

Officers of the organization will be elected by the board members at their first organization meeting.

RUIN NOW FACED
Washington, August 22.—Hundreds of fruit and potato growers in the west will be utterly ruined by the continuation of the railway strike for another twenty days and this situation is intolerable, both railroads and strikers were told by Senator William E. Borah, Republican of Idaho in a plea for peace.

COURT NEWS

SEEK TO RECOVER

Three suits against bondsmen, to recover the amount of recognizance money forfeited by defaulting prisoners, have been instituted by The State of Ohio, in the person of Prosecuting Attorney J. Kenneth Williamson, in Common Pleas Court.

The suits name the bondsmen of S. Douglas McDuffie, colored evangelist, convicted on a charge of sodomy and C. W. Jones and James Clark fined in magistrate's court for possessing liquor illegally. The bond in each case was $500, the amount asked in judgment by the state.

PERMISSION GIVEN FOR GAS PURCHASE

Columbus, Aug. 22.—Permission was given today by the State Utilities Commission for the purchase by the Central Ohio Gas Company, of the property right of the Medina Gas and Fuel Co., the Buckeye State Gas and Fuel Company, the Coshocton Gas Co., and the Berea Pipe Line Co., at a total purchase price of $9,550,000.

Authority was also given the Central Ohio Gas Company, for the issuance and sale of $7,000,000 worth of common capital stock and $3,000,000 worth of first mortgage 27 year, 7 per cent gold bonds to furnish funds for the purchase.

The purchase is said to be a move of the Henry L. Doherty interests of New York, toward consolidation of scattered Ohio natural gas companies holdings into one controlling company. The new company, it is said, will be the largest producers of produced natural gas in the state, after acquiring large holdings in the new Medina field.

BARN DESTROYED BY FIRE SUNDAY

Fire from unknown origin destroyed a large barn, cow shed and straw stack on the farm of Robert Linn, off the Springfield and Xenia pike, two and a half miles south of Yellow Springs, Sunday morning about eight o'clock.

The blaze when discovered had made a large headway, and was out of the control of farmers of the vicinity who formed bucket brigades in extinguishing the fire. No cattle or farm implements were lost in the blaze.

The loss which has not been estimated is thought to have been covered with insurance.

IS PRESIDENT OF NEW UNIVERSITY IN SOUTH

Xenia friends of Dr. George A. Hubbell who has for a number of years been president of the Lincoln Memorial University in Tenn., will be interested in knowing that he was recently elected president of a new university which is being created at Asheville, N. C. The new institution is being organized through the initiative of Dr. Hubbell and is already assured of financial backing through wealthy citizens of North Carolina and eastern capitalists.

Dr. Hubbell in looking for faculty members offered to Miss Letitia Dillencourt of Beaver Creek H. S. in this county the position of Dean of Women. Miss Dillencourt, who is a member of the faculty of the Beaver creek high school, has declined the offer to continue her work in the local school where she has been highly successful.

DR. W. J. B. EDGAR HIGHLY HONORED FOLLOWING DEATH

Xenia friends of the Rev. Dr. W. J. B. Edgar, of the United Presbyterian Church, will be grieved to learn of his death which occurred August 4, at Wildwood, N. J., where he recently closed a temporary pastorate of eight months during the absence of the pastor in the Orient.

Out of respect for Dr. Edgar's memory the Church at Wildwood was closed Sunday, August 6.

Resolutions adopted by the session of the Wildwood congregation and published in the United Presbyterian, speak in highest appreciation of the universal service rendered by Dr. Edgar in the Church and in the cause of righteousness. Dr. Edgar was especially successful in his work among young people and during his pastorate at Wildwood three young men entered the ministry.

THE FOLLY OF A "FOLLIES" GIRL.

You'd think a "Follies" chorus girl who was in Vancouver would join the cast by traveling in a compartment on a limited train. But not Miss Billie Boyd. She wanted to travel differently, so she spent four months walking to New York to join the Ziegfeld show.

Efficient Housekeeping

"A. D.": "I put coffee in starch, to dye some scrim curtains, and the curtains are now coffee-streaked. What caused this? Also please tell me whether I may wash my varnished hardwood floors with warm water and soap?"

Answer: It is always safer to dye a white material in clear, diluted coffee and let it dry before starching it. Also, tea makes a better dye than coffee because it is odorless and less apt to streak. Gum Arabic would have been a better stiffening agent than starch. Did you see the gum-arabic solution formula which I published last Tuesday—August 15? If not, get a back copy of the paper in the Circulation Department of this newspaper. If you have a spar-varnish on your floors, you can use warm water and soap in washing them. Other wise clean your varnished floors with linseed oil and petroleum mixed in equal parts.

A Reader: "Please print a grape juice recipe."

Answer: Grape Juice: Wild grapes are best to use, but the purple Concord grapes are fine too. Wash the grapes well, then mash them with a wooden potato-masher (or with the bottom of a china cup) and put them over the fire in a porcelain-lined or agateware preserving kettle with only enough water to keep them from sticking to the bottom. (Do not cover the grapes with water—use only enough to keep them from burning.) Bring slowly to a boil and boil till musky—about one hour, stirring often so that they do not "catch." Then strain the juice and measure it. For every quart of juice allow one-half cup of granulated sugar. Put sugar and strained juice back into the kettle and let come to the boil again it will bubble to the top of the kettle and should then be pushed back to a cooler part of the range. Do this three times—that is boil hard so that it will bubble up, and then push it back again. Then pour the mixture into old catsup bottles which you have sterilized by boiling, empty, in clear water for ten minutes. (Unless the bottle is still hot, from sterilization, it will crack when the hot juice is poured into it.) Cork at once, then dip the neck of the bottle into hot, melted paraffine wax to seal the cork airtight. This will keep a year.

Bride: "How can I fill up large cracks and knot-holes before repainting our floor?"

Answer: Make paper dough as follows, to fill up the crevices: Scrumple up newspapers very soft, tear them to bits, then dampen these bits and knead and pound them well. Now wet them with strong glue-size and knead them to a dough. Just before pressing this dough into cracks or knot-holes, with a little Plaster of Paris and then work quickly before the plaster sets. (Often plaster of Paris is very substantial.)

A Reader Friend: "Will crepe de Chine underwear keep perfectly for more than a year without being worn?"

Answer: "Yes, perfectly. If it is white, wrap it in blue tissue paper to prevent its turning yellow."

YOUNG WIFE ATTEMPTS SUICIDE. BLAMES JEALOUSY

Cincinnati, August 22.—Mrs. Beatrice Penner, 18, is in a critical condition at the City hospital from the effects of a quantity of rat poison which she drank after penning a fare well note to her husband last night. The message charged Penner with being tired of his wife, ended by saying that she did not wish to bother him longer and asking that he take good care of their sixteen months old daughter. Jealously is said to be the bottom of the attempted suicide.

Indomitable Durant

It is said in automotive circles that W. C. Durant accomplishes what he plans; to him difficulties are so many spurs to greater effort, making one get on the faster.

He is the man who made the Buick. He conceived and organized General Motors, including Cadillac, Chevrolet, Oakland and Oldsmobile. Certainly a considerable monument to one man's tireless energy.

But now, when many men would be content to enjoy a well-earned vacation, he is up to the armpits in the business of launching the crowning effort of his career.

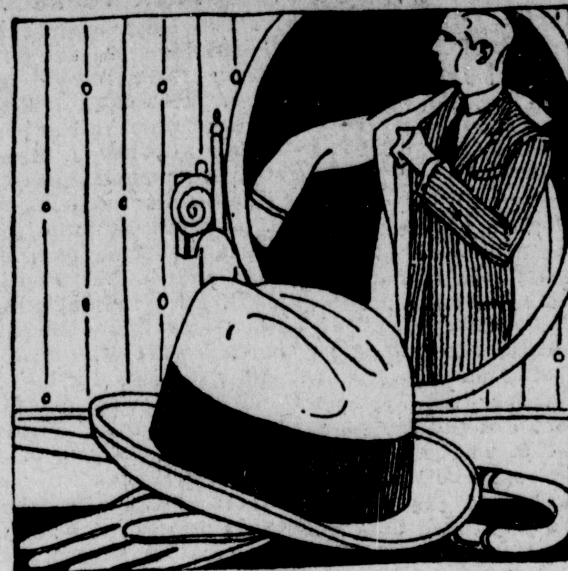

It's "just a real good car," Durant says. "If it's good enough for him to christen with his own name, it's good enough for us," said the trade, and in 141 working days after the announcement they contracted for $31,000,000 worth of Durant cars.

Fire from unknown origin destroyed a large barn, cow shed and straw stack on the farm of Robert Linn, off the Springfield and Xenia pike, two and a half miles south of Yellow Springs, Sunday morning about eight o'clock.

The blaze when discovered had made a large headway, and was out of the control of farmers of the vicinity who, formed bucket brigades in extinguishing the fire. No cattle or farm implements were lost in the blaze.

The loss which has not been estimated is thought, to have been covered with insurance.

Efficient Housekeeping

"A. D.": "I put coffee in starch, to dye some scrim curtains, and the curtains are now coffee-streaked. What caused this? Also please tell me whether I may wash my varnished hardwood floors with warm water and soap?"

Answer: It is always safer to dye a white material in clear, diluted coffee and let it dry before starching it. Also, tea makes a better dye than coffee because it is odorless and less apt to streak. Gum Arabic would have been a better stiffening agent than starch. Did you see the gum-arabic solution formula which I published last Tuesday—August 15? If not, get a back copy of the paper in the Circulation Department of this newspaper. If you have a spar-varnish on your floors, you can use warm water and soap in washing them. Otherwise clean your varnished floors with linseed oil and petroleum mixed in equal parts.

A Reader: "Please print a grape juice recipe."

Answer: Grape Juice: Wild grapes are best to use, but the purple Concord grapes are fine too. Wash the grapes well, then mash them with a wooden potato-masher (or with the bottom of a china cup) and put them over the fire in a porcelain-lined or agateware preserving kettle with only enough water to keep them from sticking to the bottom. (Do not cover the grapes with water—use only enough to keep them from burning.) Bring slowly to a boil and boil till mushy—about one hour, stirring often so that they do not "catch." Then strain the juice and measure it. For every quart of juice allow one-half cup of granulated sugar. Put sugar and strained juice back into the kettle and let come to the boil again it will bubble to the top of the kettle and should then be pushed back to a cooler part of the range. Do this three times—that is boil hard so that it will bubble up, and then push it back again. Then pour the mixture into old catsup bottles which you have sterilized by boiling, empty, in clear water for ten minutes. (Unless the bottle is still hot, from sterilization, it will crack when the hot juice is poured into it.) Cork at once, then dip the neck of the bottle into hot, melted paraffine wax to seal the cork airtight. This will keep a year.

Bride: "How can I fill up large cracks and knot-holes before repainting our floor?"

Answer: Make paper dough as follows, to fill up the crevices: Scrumple up newspapers very soft, tear them to bits, then dampen these bits and knead and pound them well. Now wet them with strong glue-size and knead them to a dough. Just before pressing this dough into cracks or knot-holes, with a putty-knife, mix into the dough a little Plaster of Paris and then work quickly before the plaster sets. (Often plaster of Paris is not necessary, as the paper dough is very substantial.)

A Reader Friend: "Will crepe de Chine underwear keep perfectly for more than a year without being worn?"

Answer: "Yes, perfectly. If it is white, wrap it in blue tissue paper to prevent its turning yellow."

SELLS STREET PAVING BONDS AMOUNTING TO OVER $73,000

Street paving bonds amounting to $73,500, were sold at the special meeting of the city commission Monday to the firm of Richards, Parish and Lamson, Cleveland, at a premium of $1.876.

There were fifteen bids received for the bonds which are to cover the city's share of costs and the expense in anticipation of assessments on the East Church Street at al., paving program, including Chestnut and Shepard Streets, which were only recently included.

The bonds sold bear 5 1-2 per cent interest. At the same time the commission let the contract for paving Shepard and Chestnut Streets to the Republican Asphalt Company, which is paving the other streets in East Church street at al., program, and which was the only company to bid on the two streets. The Republican Company bid the work in at the same rate as the company's present contract with the city.

CAN PAY STREET PAVING IS WORD

Property owners living on streets that are included in the East Church Street at al., paving program for paving improvements now being carried out, have until September 1 to pay their cash special assessments if they wish to do so.

Property owners who pay their assessments in cash can save the interest charge. The interest how lever will be added on even for a cash settlement after Sept. 1. City Auditor T. H. Zell will supply property owners of the amount of their assessment and cash payments can be made to him before the first of the month.

ELEVEN LESS TEACHERS ON FACULTY LIST OF XENIA SCHOOLS FOR COMING YEAR; MISS ELWELL HONORED WITH NEW POST

Eleven less teachers than composed the personnel of Xenia's public school teaching staff last year, will guide the destinies of pupils in those schools during the coming school year, according to the list of assignments given out Tuesday by School Superintendent C. A. Waltz.

Three of these teachers are looped off the faculty of Central High School, which has been reduced from 18 to 15 teachers. Two less teachers will be on the staff of McKinley Junior High School this year, there being eight instead of ten members of this staff. McKinley grades will have six teachers, one less than the number of last year.

Two less teachers will be used in the grades of Spring Hill School, according to the lists, and six teachers will do the work there this year that eight did last year. The personnel of the Opportunity Schools, which have been combined into one school, has been reduced from three to two teachers. Lincoln High School will have one less teacher than last year, the personnel for the coming year numbering ten instead of eleven. One special teacher, teaching penmanship in all the schools, has also been eliminated by the shearing process, which was necessitated by the economic policy put into effect by the schools this year, to recoup finances.

Among the Central High School teachers not appearing on the list for the coming year, is Miss Jean B. Elwell, for years head of the English department, who has handed in her resignation to the superintendent and the board, and has taken advantage of the state retirement law. In recognition of the years of effort she put in for the benefit of high school students, Miss Elwell has been honored by being made Supervisor Emerita of the English Department of Central High School, a newly created title, that has never before been given to a former teacher.

While her name does not appear on the assignment list for the coming year, she will continue probably to teach one class, and will be an advisory head of the department. Miss Janet McBane and Miss Imogene McElwain are other teachers who will not return to the faculty this year who have given several years' service to the school. While the other teachers who will not return to the Central High faculty, most of whom served but one year, are Coach J. K. Katherman, Miss Helen Santmyer, Mrs. Carl Nybladh, Henry L. Maldaner and Spencer Shanks. The entire personnel of the city's teaching staff for the coming year, totals 62 names.

Harper C. Pendry, for several years principal of Central High School, will return to the school in capacity and Miss Marie Weller, will again be assistant principal. Miss Fannie K. Haynes will continue as head of the Latin department, and V. L. Fairies and Carrol Zumbro will return to the department of industrial arts. E. O. Barr will again teach mathematics, and Miss Mildred Prugh will return as teacher of social science. Miss Marian Lane will again have charge of the household arts department, and Misses Margaret O'Neil and Alba Junk will continue to teach commercial branches.

Five new names are included in the personnel of the Central High faculty. Miss Beula Grimes, an experienced teacher and graduate of Muskingum College, will teach modern languages; Miss Mildred White, an experienced teacher and graduate of the Ohio State University, will teach English; Earl W. Burgner, who graduated in June from Wittenberg College, will teach science and coach all athletics; V. E. Seibert, who will teach science and history, is a graduate of Ohio Wesleyan University; I. G. Sandusky, who will teach commercial branches, is a graduate of the Office Training School, Columbus, and formerly head of the commercial department in the high school of Kenton and Nelsonville.

Four new teachers have been assigned to the Central Grades. Miss Emma Glascock, Geography, and Misses Mabel Foster and Geneva Smith, teachers of the second and first grade, respectively, are all from southern Ohio and received their higher education at Miami University and Wilmington College. Miss Louise Parrett, Xenia, who will teach the third grade, has already taught in the schools, but was released from duty last year while she pursued a course at Miami University.

Mary Thompson, new principal of teacher at Orient Hill, is a graduate of Wilmington College. Miss Thelma Powell, new teacher in McKinley Grades, is from Xenia, and received her higher education at Miami University. Miss Hazel Schwab, new teacher of geography at Spring Hill, is a graduate of Miami University and has been teaching at Miami'sburg.

JAMESTOWN NEWS

The services of the Jamestown boys' band seems to be in demand.

On last Thursday the band furnished the music for the Catholic Church picnic. On the 23rd it has been engaged to play for the annual farmers' picnic, which is under the supervision of the Greene County Fair Bureau and will be held on the Xenia Fair Grounds, and on the 24th they will furnish the music for the Glass reunion at the Ross Township school building. Though mere boys ranging in age from 13 to 16, they form an embryo for a splendid band and their director Charles Glass with the boys are receiving many well deserved compliments.

One special teacher, teaching penmanship in all the schools, has also been eliminated by the shearing process, which was necessitated by the economic policy put into effect by the schools this year, to recoup finances.

Among the Central High School teachers not appearing on the list for the coming year, is Miss Jean B. Elwell, for years head of the English department, who has handed in her resignation to the superintendent and the board, and has taken advantage of the state retirement law. In recognition of the years of effort she put in for the benefit of high school students, Miss Elwell has been honored by being made Supervisor Emeritus of the English Department of Central High School, a newly-created title, that has never before been given to a former teacher. While her name does not appear on the assignment list for the coming year, she will continue probably to teach one class, and will be an advisory head of the department. Miss Janet McBane and Miss Imogene McElwain are other teachers who will not return to the faculty this year who have given several years' service to the school. While the other teachers who will not return to the Central High faculty, most of whom served but one year, are Coach J. L. Katherman, Miss Helen Santmyer, Mrs. Carl Nybladh, Henry L. Maldaner and Spencer Shanks. The entire personnel of the city's teaching staff for the coming year, totals 62 names.

Harper C. Pendry, for several years principal of Central High School, will return to the school in that capacity and Miss Marie Weller, will again be assistant principal. Miss Fannie K. Haynes will continue as head of the Latin department, and V. L. Faires and Carrol Zumbro will return to the department of industrial arts. E. O. Barr will again teach mathematics, and Miss Mildred Prugh will return as teacher of social science. Miss Marian Lane will again have charge of the household arts department, and Misses Margaret O'Neil and Alba Junk will continue to teach commercial branches.

Five new names are included in the personnel of the Central High faculty. Miss Beula Grimes, an experienced teacher and graduate of Muskingum College, will teach modern languages; Miss Mildred White, an experienced teacher and graduate of the Ohio State University, will teach English; Earl W. Burgner, who graduated in June from Wittenberg College, will teach science and coach all athletes; V. E. Seibert, who will teach science and history, is a graduate of Ohio Wesleyan University; I. G. Sandusky, who will teach commercial branches, is a graduate of the Office Training School, Columbus, and formerly head of the commercial department in the high school, of Kenton and Nelsonville.

Four new teachers have been assigned to the Central Grades, Miss Emma Glascock, Geography, and Misses Mabel Foster and Geneva Smith, teachers of the second and first grades, respectively, are all from southern Ohio and received their higher education at Miami University and Wilmington College. Miss Louise Parrett, Xenia, who will teach the third grade, has already taught in the schools, but was released from duty last year while she pursued a course at Miami University.

Mary Thompson, new principal, a teacher at Orient Hill, is a graduate of Wilmington College. Miss Thelma Powell, new teacher in McKinley Grades, is from Xenia, and received her higher education at Miami University. Miss Hazel Schwab, new teacher of geography at Spring Hill, is a graduate of Miami University and has been teaching at Miamisburg.

Eleven less teachers than composed the personnel of Xenia's public school teaching staff last year, will guide the destinies of pupils in those schools during the coming school year, according to the list of assignments given out Tuesday by School Superintendent C. A. Waltz.

Three of these teachers, are looped off the faculty of Central High School, which has been reduced from 18 to 15 teachers. Two less teachers will be on the staff of McKinley Junior High School this year, there being eight instead of ten members of this staff. McKinley grades will have six teachers, one less than the number of last year.

Two less teachers will be used in the grades of Spring Hill School, according to the lists, and six teachers will do the work there this year, which was eight last year. The personnel of the Opportunity Schools, which have been combined into one school, has been reduced from three to two teachers. Lincoln High School will have one less teacher than last year, the personnel for the coming year numbering ten instead of eleven. One special teacher, teaching penmanship in all the schools, has also been eliminated by the shearing process, which was necessitated by the economic policy put into effect by the schools this year, to recoup finances.

GLADYS OCCASIONALLY SHOWS
BITTERNESS

Chapter 50
It was not to be supposed, neither would it be natural, that the girls did not have young men friends. Cora had her William, although they never could hope to marry. There was a quiet fellow who often took Gladys out, and Nellie had a couple of hard-earned friends with whom she went to the movies, and occasionally to Coney Island on Sunday. These were the young men who came to the little flat when invited, plain working boys, mostly bookkeepers, but all good, moral fellows.

"Jim and Barney cut up a lot," Nellie said when Cora questioned her "but they aren't a bit fresh. I'd like to catch them at it! Little Nellie has n't any use for fresh guys, and I guess they know it even if I do carry on like the very dickens with them. I just have to let go sometimes. I'd pop open if I didn't. And what a mess that would make. And, girls, I guess Miss Dorothy Fallon feels that way sometimes too. She came into the office the other day fairly dancing and when Mr. Fallon asked her how she felt, she said: 'I feel like a bird, Uncle. If I wasn't afraid they'd put you out of the building I'd sing.' Oh, she's so sweet!" A sigh finished the sentence.

"Why shouldn't she be? Born with a silver spoon in her mouth," Gladys said. At times Gladys was a little bitter. She never but the once had felt tempted to do wrong, and that temptation she had resisted, but it had changed her in a way of which she herself was scarcely conscious. At the time she had said to herself:

"Other girls have things because they have fathers and mothers to give them to them. If I ever have anything—pretty clothes, a nice home, I have to do wrong—or it looks that way."

She no longer believed just as she did then, but she craved lovely clothes, and more than anything else, affection. To a certain extent Nellie had filled this need, but at times the feeling that she had not had a square deal in the world made her say bitter things, that, until she had given Nellie her confidence, the younger girl could not understand.

Sometimes when Cora talked to the girls, not in a preaching or fault-finding way, but lovingly tried to help them by quoting her father, or telling them her own thoughts of their work their living, Gladys would become impatient, and show it in her face, even if she said nothing. Then Nellie would take up the cudgels:

"Don't you dare look like that, Miss Doran! Cora's got it straight all right! You see she was brought up right, her Pa a minister. Then she's more educated—not that you can't put it over me all right at that. But even you aren't educated like her. 'It isn't easy to be good and patient when we long for things,' Cora said in her quiet way. 'I never have said so before, but it is hard for me to give up all idea of being anything to William—anything but a friend. But, Gladys, dear, no one ever was made happy, so Dad used to say, by doing something they knew was wrong. William has his responsibilities. I have mine. Neither of us can shirk them. The best we can hope for is to do what God has given us to do as well as we can and be good friends. And work, trying for efficiency in our work, brings peace and contentment, even if we are denied the things girls who have no responsibilities have."

"You think a whole lot of that word 'efficient' don't you?" Nellie asked. She would not let the girls be too serious.

"Yes, Nellie, I do! If we could forget our pay envelopes—what we need in money returns—and devote our minds to doing the very best in us regardless of that, it would mean success. But unfortunately we can't forget, can't work and have faith in that the results will be even better, our reward even greater if we think only of what we do; not of what we get. We should try to develop our initiative, make ourselves necessary—then the money would come of itself. We could ask for a raise because we know we were worth it; that our employers could not afford to let us go."

"Hear! Hear!" Nellie said then: "I know you are right, Cora. And your talks do us good—even if I do rag you."

Blood Saves Baby's Life

Watertown, N. Y., August 22.—first case on record where blood was transfused into the veins of a new born infant were disclosed here. The child is the infant son of Professor W. E. Promise and Performance

Have you ever noticed that our references to Hart Schaffner & Marx Clothing and to our fine Hats and Haberdashery, are distinctly moderate?

That isn't because of modesty—it is just good merchandising.

An advertisement alone never rings the register. Promises don't make sales.

Self praise is never convincing.

You buy because the goods are better than you anticipated. A price is not low unless you expected to pay more.

We want your satisfaction to reach its highest point after you buy—to be based on performance rather than on promises.

We want your regard to grow from year to year, and from purchase to purchase—not to recede on the ebb of disappointment.

We don't try to sell you—we try to make you a customer.

New York, Aug. 22.—After being given up for lost, three men on the seaplane Ambassador 2nd which had been missing since Sunday morning, were rescued from the Atlantic ocean by a fishing smack early today and landed at Long Beach, L. I.

The battered seaplane was sighted riding the crest of mountainous billows, the pilot, mechanic and passenger clinging to it. With a great deal of difficulty the men were rescued. All were exhausted and suffering from exposure, thirst and hunger.

Pilot, W. R. Miller said something had happened to the engine and that the motor shot downward striking the water at a sharp angle.

An attempt was made by the schooner to tow the seaplane to shore but the waves were so high and the wind so strong that the attempt had to be abandoned.

The Ambassador 2nd, carrying one passenger left Eighty First Street at 7 o'clock Sunday morning to fly to Fire Island and return.

The man invited the boy into the house and while he was eating, notified the police and the Sheriff who arrived just after the lad had disappeared.

GLADYS OCCASIONALLY SHOWS BITTERNESS Chapter 60

It was not to be supposed, neither would it be natural, that the girls did not have young men friends. Cora had her William, although they never could hope to marry. There was a quiet fellow who often took Gladys out, and Nellie had a couple of harum-scarum friends with whom she went to the movies, and occasionally to Coney Island on Sunday. These were the young men who came to the little flat when invited, plain working boys, mostly bookkeepers, but all good, moral fellows.

"Jim and Barney cut up a lot," Nellie said when Cora questioned her "but they aren't a bit fresh. I'd like to catch them at it! Little Nellie has n't any use for fresh guys, and I guess they know it even if I do carry on like the very dickens with them. I just have to let go sometimes. I'd pop open if I didn't. And what a mess that would make. And, girls, I guess Miss Dorothy Fallon feels that way sometimes too. She came into the office the other day fairly dancing and when Mr. Fallon asked her how she felt, she said: 'I feel like a bird, Uncle. If I wasn't afraid they'd put you out of the building I'd sing.' Oh's she's so sweet!" A sigh finished the sentence.

"Why shouldn't she be? Born with a silver spoon in her mouth," Gladys said. At times Gladys was a little bitter. She never but the once had felt tempted to do wrong, and that temptation she had resisted, but it had changed her in a way of which she herself was scarcely conscious. At the time she had said to herself:

"Other girls have things because they have fathers and mothers to give them to them. If I ever have anything—pretty clothes, a nice home, I have to do wrong—or it looks that way."

She no longer believed just as she did then, but she craved lovely clothes, and more than anything else, affection. To a certain extent Nellie had filled this need, but at times the feeling that she had not had a square deal in the world made her say bitter things, that, until she had given Nellie her confidence, the younger girl could not understand.

Sometimes when Cora talked to the girls, not in a preaching or fault-finding way, but lovingly tried to help them by quoting her father, or telling them her own thoughts of their work their living, Gladys would become impatient, and show it in her face, even if she said nothing. Then Nellie would take up the cudgels:

"Don't you dare look like that, Miss Doran! Cora's got it straight all right! You see she was brought up right, her Pa a minister. Then she's more educated—not that you can't put it over me all right at that. But even you aren't educated like her."

"It isn't easy to be good and patient when we long for things," Cora said in her quiet way. "I never have said so before, but it is hard for me to give up all idea of being anything to William—anything but a friend."

But, Gladys dear, no one ever was made happy, so Dad used to say, by doing something they knew was wrong. William has his responsibility. I have mine. Neither of us can shirk them. The best we can hope for is to do what God has given us to do as well as we can and be good friends. And work, trying for efficiency in our work, brings peace and contentment, even if we are denied the things girls who have no responsibilities have."

"You think a whole lot of that word 'efficient' don't you?" Nellie asked. She would not let the girls be too serious.

"Yes, Nellie, I do! If we could forget our pay envelopes—what we need in money returns—and devote our minds to doing the very best in us regardless of that, it would mean Success. But unfortunately we can't forget, can't work and have faith in that the results will be even better, our reward even greater if we think only of what we do; not of what we get. We should try to develop our initiative, make ourselves necessary—then the money would come of itself. We could ask for a raise because we know we were worth it; that our employers could not afford to let us go."

"Hear! Hear!" Nellie said then: "I know you are right, Cora. And your talks do us good—even if I do rag you."
